HANDCRAFTED

Thank you! for making a difference with Lantern Moon

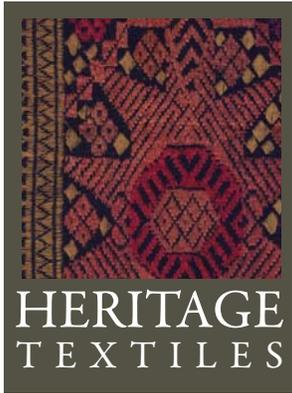

Your purchases have improved the lives of our artisans and their families for 14 years and counting...

Lantern Moon proudly offers beautiful and functional handcrafted products that provide continuity of training and ethical employment for women and families. Beginning in Vietnam, our work has expanded to include Cambodia, Bali, Indonesia, and Northern Thailand. The natural materials that inspire our designs are combined with traditional handcrafting skills indigenous to these regions and passed down from generation to generation. All of us, individually and as a Company, believe that it is our responsibility to make lives better economically, socially and environmentally in the world community.

A Heritage Textiles product is a designation that Lantern Moon applies to textile techniques and other artistic forms taught from one generation to the next.

We showcase the original artistry of these pieces to encourage continuation of the teaching tradition and to raise awareness of the fragile state of the art.

Preserving our cultural handcrafted arts is what binds generations and communities together.

Support our Heritage Textiles program. Look for products accompanied by the Heritage Textiles logo.

Knitting Needles

There are many needles on the market to choose from. Our needles are distinguished by the care we take of the wood, never adding plastic resins or formaldehyde to densify or laminate the wood. Handmade by skilled craftsmen and women from carefully selected hardwoods, these heirloom quality tools involve several stages of sanding, honing and polishing to assure the smoothest possible finish.

We are proud to say that our wooden needles are unmatched in quality. The warmth and lightweight nature of natural wood and our silky smooth finish make them uniquely special to own.

Single Point Needles

Handcrafted using our famous "liquid silk" finishing process. Available in Ebony, Rosewood or Featherlight Slate. Note: Natural variations in wood color on all needles do occur.

The Story of Lantern Moon Destiny Needles

Every life has a story. The special family who makes Lantern Moon knitting needles believes in the power of destiny. This is the story of how their lives became intertwined with yours.

In Vietnam, if you have lived long enough, your life has two stories. Your first story ends in 1975, and your second story begins thereafter. 1975 was the year when the long struggle of the Vietnam conflict ended, yet new hardships lay ahead for its people. They suffered from continued wars, floods, food shortages, re-education camps or prison.

After the war, Thuan's family struggled just to survive. Losing hope that conditions would improve in Vietnam, they - like many of their countrymen - set about making plans to leave and begin life anew in another country. (Referred to in the West as Boat People, these Vietnamese citizens soon began to arrive all over the world. By the early 1980's, millions had immigrated to other countries.)

After much searching, Thuan and his brother Huyet found a boat on which they would attempt their escape. The family took off into the night waters of the Mekong Delta where a boat awaited them, filled with other desperate families willing to risk everything for a new life.

Their goal was to make it past the pirates and the police and into international waters in their leaky overloaded boat. Once there, the plan was to disable the motor and wait for a passing freighter, with the hope it would see their tiny craft before ramming into it. If they were lucky, they might be picked up and taken to a refugee camp, and then resettled in a new country which they would call home.

They set out, and believing they had reached international waters, one of the men stood on the deck and screamed, "We have made it out of Vietnam!" Soon after, one of the boat's two engines sputtered and died. Unable to see well enough to repair the engine, they decided to attempt sleep and deal with the problem in the morning.

They awoke to the sound of boats approaching them ... pirates, police, or navy; they weren't certain. They fired up the boat's one engine and tried to outrun them, but they were far too slow. The navy was catching up, guns blazing and bullets flying. Uncle Huyet was at the helm, and everyone else was on the floor praying for their lives. Finally, Thuan took off his white shirt and waved it in surrender.

Huyet spent two years in jail after their capture, but prison didn't keep the brothers from scheming and dreaming about future attempts to escape Vietnam. Twice more the brothers tried but failed to escape by boat, each time losing all they had to pirates or police, and each time serving prison sentences to receive more "re-education." Although splitting up the family would increase their chance for success, there would be no guarantee they would be reunited. Either they would escape together, or not at all. The brothers believed the most important goal was to remain an intact family.

After the last failed attempt, Thuan sat in prison imagining my friend and his oldest son Quang, who was only eight years old at the time, wandering the streets looking for food while his wife took care of the baby. It was at this moment that Thuan realized it was his destiny to stay in Vietnam.

As Thuan reflects back on that time he recalls, "Each time we tried to leave we had less and less for the pirates and the police to steal, but things were also getting a little better in the country, so I thought there must be something we are supposed to be doing here."

And, according to Thuan, that something turned out to be the needle factory.

"After 1975 it seems like I spent all my waking hours trying to keep the family together and get out of the country so that I could take care of them, but for some reason it never worked. I never understood why, until the opportunity to make the needles came along. Now it is what we do. It is why we are here. It is how we stay together. It is how I take care of my family and it was our destiny."

Is it important to know who makes your needles and to know that they believe in destiny? We think so. Uncle Huyet asked me, "I spent two years in prison trying to gain my freedom. If my attempts to get out of Vietnam had been successful, who would make Lantern Moon needles?"

Now that destiny has been passed on for the next generation. This small family workshop is now being run by the oldest son, Phong. We are proud and pleased that this handcrafted tool maker has been able to pass on a sustainable and strong business to his family.

The Story of Tulip Brand

The tradition of needle-making in Hiroshima stretches back for more than 300 years. Tulip brand is based in this Hiroshima region and produces sewing needles, crochet hooks and knitting needles for handcrafts. Atsushi Harada, the founder, hoped to create a popular brand that would be a favorite among all users, by developing a high quality product that is both reliable and easy to use.

The current and second president, Kotaro Harada continues the legacy of his father. He is committed to providing service and conducting business with integrity by delivering premium quality products that will contribute to society, targeting customers who "use Tulip products to enjoy their life every day." Tulip staff "want to please our customers because they are fond of Hiroshima and Tulip," and they help promote the idea of "leading a fulfilling life that starts from using needles."

"Even as we plan for and anticipate the future, we will continue to build our expertise in technology while preserving our traditional techniques, in order to stay committed to being a company that is both reliable and a favorite among our customers."

We find these needles and hooks to be superior quality to any bamboo on the market. - Joel Woodcock

Our Philosophy

Lantern Moon's business plan actively supports the United Nations Millennium Development Goals, which range from halving extreme poverty to halting the spread of HIV/AIDS and providing universal primary education, by a target date of 2015. As 2015 approaches, the UN is working with governments, civil society and other partners to build on the momentum generated by these goals and carry on with an ambitious post-2015 development agenda.

To learn more about these efforts and what's ahead, visit the UN's website at:

About our Featherlight Needles

Forestry Stewardship Council Certified Wood

The Featherlight Needle line represents our continuing commitment to environmentally appropriate, socially beneficial and economically viable business. These are the industry's first and only needles made entirely from sustainably harvested FSC-certified woods.

As light as Birch and as durable as our Ebony and Rosewood, with the same signature look and feel, a Featherlight Needle is an heirloom quality tool that will be a joy to use for generations.

Our Guarantee

Small imperfections in natural fibers or hand loomed fabrics are to be expected and contribute to the unique beauty of the item. Each Lantern Moon handcrafted item reflects the workmanship of an individual. We support their efforts and guarantee all Lantern Moon products. If there is a problem with one of the products you purchase, please return it to the store you purchased from, or let us know and we will make arrangements to fix or replace it.
